

FAMILY TREASURE

Treasure Conundrum Real World Application

Directions

We do not know the contents of the treasure in the Treasure Conundrum, but we can use it as inspiration for you to create your own collection of treasures! In this project, you will first be the Treasure Hunter as you speak with your family to find a treasure of personal or family importance. Then you will turn into the Researcher and Translator as you document the item's description, history, and importance to you and/or your family. I've provided a short example below). Finally, you will take on the role of the Narrator as you present the item to your peers. We encourage you to find something important and speak with your family to understand the item's importance!

Item Description

My treasure is a gold ring that I was given by my father. This ring was given to him by his father who received it from his father. It was created in Italy along the Adriatic Sea coast for my great grandfather and shows his initials "BC". This ring came with my grandfather to the United States when he immigrated here. The ring has manual engravings which are worn in some places from being heavily worn. This ring is important to me and my family because it represents a connection to our ancestors, and our history and connection with Italy.

Presentation Considerations

In addition to the details in the item description, you can expand your presentation to your classmates to describe relevant events, a biography of the original owner of the treasure, what will happen to the treasure in the future, or maybe collect and learn about multiple treasures.
